Manager Kopstein and GHI Board at Odds Over "Conflict of Interest" Disclosure Rule

by Mary Lou Williamson

The Greenbelt Homes Board of Directors unanimously approved retaining the services of an architectural firm for Phase II of Rehab. But signs of stress between factions on the board and between some boards members and the manager surfaced off and on throughout the long meeting, culminating in a fight over an earlier decision to exempt the manager from signing the new conflict of interest statement.

Deadline for closing on the temporary construction loan for Rehab: Phase II from the Maryland Community Development Administration is now February 28. GHI expects to use revenue bonds either through CDA or the City of Greenbelt for permanent financing.

Kopstein announced the probability that CDA would agree to the 30-day delay in the deadline. GHI had requested extra time to meet all the conditions CDA has set for the temporary financing which would allow GHI to move into the final phases of rehab and the electric heat conversion. Those conditions require: (1) two contingency funds ($2.3 million and $4.5 million) designed to assure that GHI will be able to complete the entire project and (2) membership re-approval of the costs of issuing revenue bonds and a reserve equal to one year's principal and interest on the bond issue. Reapproval is necessary because new, larger total figures are involved. Moreover, $1.7 million in additional work, much of it repairs to meet government standards, is required to meet standards for the Section 8 housing assistance program.

Kopstein expects CDA to respond favorably to the delay request soon. Management would then recommend postponing for several weeks the special membership meeting now scheduled for February 19.

Resales

The National Consumer Co-op Bank is interested in opening up a secondary market on GHI home loans by purchasing co-op unit loans from local lending institutions. These institutions would be required to turn around and re-loan an equal amount of money on co-op homes. Twin Pines has indicated its willingness to participate. (The Credit Union counsel and federal examiner have both reviewed the arrangement and recommended against participation because of GHI's subordination clause.)

In making the announcement, an excited Kopstein told the board this is the first secondary market in the nation by the Coop bank, which will make some $2.4 million available here.

Ed James wanted to know whether GHI itself could loan directly to purchasers. He would like to see more competition in the local market, he said. Kopstein indicated that would be possible, but that the Coop bank preferred in this case to work through existing financial institutions. The bank, he explained, wants to set up a model program that can be copied easily.

City Accepts Reports From Advisory Board

Council accepted several reports on January 19. In one report, APB recommended a revised Greenbelt-East subdivision plan be accepted with provisions for a sidewalk/bicycle path and site plan approval for individual lots at the building permit stage. Further, APB felt that access to some parcels of the small triangular area on the east of Greenway Shopping Center should not be from Hanover Parkway. In a second report, APB recommended that a reduction in the building restriction line for Lakeside West not be opposed. Council will take action on the reports at its next session.

A final report accepted by council from the Park and Recreation Advisory Board recommended the new ball field beside Mandan Road be named Windsor Green Ball Field. A charter amendment relating to a deferred compensation plan for employees was given a first reading. Another Charter amendment given a first reading would enlarge the Employee Relations Board to five members and provide for quorums, procedures, and powers of the Board. Asked for comment, Employee Relations Board member Al Herling said, "I find the thing somewhat ambiguous." A copy of the proposed amendment will be sent to the board for its suggestions. Herling also appeared before council to voice Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center thanks for city support of the recent Baltimore Symphony Orchestra Concert.

Owners of Parcels 3, 4 Appeal Denial of Townhouse Zoning

by Mary Lou Williamson

In an appeal to the Circuit Court for Prince Georges County, the owners of Parcels 3 and 4 ask that the December 1 decision of the District Council to rezone the property from R-R (rural residential) to R-80 (single family) be reversed. The petitioners state that at the hearings including those before the District Council, which resulted in the Council's decision of Dec. 1, 1980, they presented evidence which justified approval of the requested rezoning to the R-T zone (Townhouses). "Given development and land uses in the area immediately surrounding the property, the R-T zone represents the most compatible zone." They point out that "the decision of the District Council is in contravention of the recommendations of the Master Plan for Parcel 4. The Master Plan calls for R-80 for the 2.9 acre Parcel 3 which lies to the west of Research Road and R-T for the 7.4 acre Parcel 4 to the east. The land had been zoned R-R in 1949. The Zoning Hearing Examiner recommended retaining the land in the R-R zone.

"The petitioners contend that the District Council's decision of December 1, 1980, in denying the requested R-T zone is in violation of constitutional mandates, affected by error of law, both substantive and procedural, unsupported by competent material and substantial evidence in view of the entire record as submitted, constitutes zoning by plebiscite and is arbitrary and capricious."

The petitioners further state they "are aggrieved by the decision of the District Council" and ask the court for its reversal. They also ask for "such other and further relief as to this court may seem just and proper." The petition for review was signed on January 12 by Edward Gibbs, who has been handling the zoning application for the owners. Gibbs is a member of the Shipley and Zanecki law firm.

The petition names Prince Georges County, Maryland and the County Council sitting as the District Council as defendants. Trustee Burton J. Reiner represents the financial interest of long-time Greenbelt land developer Charles Bresler.

On January 14, City Manager James Giese for the city of Greenbelt and other parties of record received notice of the appeal. At its next regular meeting the city council took note of the appeal. In response to an inquiry from councilman Charles Schwan, City Solicitor Emmett Nanna said the courts are so far behind, it could take 12 to 14 months before the case is heard. Councilman Tom White said he would have been "surprised that the applicants would go to the circuit court" if only the two small parcels were involved. But the stakes here are higher because of about 110 acres of vacant land which they own in the adjacent Parcels 1 and 2. Councilman Richard Castaldi also noted the upcoming Sectional Map Amendment for the Greenbelt area.

Schwan inquired about offering photographs of the extensive saving of large trees on the 2 lots currently being developed on Parcel 5. Nanna explained to city council that no new evidence would be permitted.

In a conversation with the News Review, Gibbs explained the process of the review—attorneys for each side would present to the court written memos which would discuss legal aspects of the case. Oral arguments before the court would follow. No witnesses would be called. The decision of the court would be based on the official proceedings.

Stringers

After more than 40 years of continuous publication, the Greenbelt News Review has become such a fixture in our city that readers may view the crew responsible for its regular appearance as a large and powerful organization. The truth, however, is less glamorous: we are a small band of volunteers, dividing our time between jobs, families and various other activities and also publishing your newspaper. The amount of attention we can give the Greenbelt News-Review is sometimes stretched pretty thin.

Staff members are fully aware of the paper's role as eyes and ears of the Greenbelt community, but we find the task often difficult. Sometimes we become aware of a newsworthy item only because someone has called a member of the editorial crew; often an event is reported, or an obituary article appears, only because some reader has taken the time and effort to contribute a written item. Occasionally we miss altogether a piece of news because no one has called, no one has written.

The dictionary defines "stringer" (among other definitions) as "a part time representative for a news publication." The News-Review has many stringers in Greenbelt and appreciates their help. If you wish to join their ranks, feel welcome: call one of our editors or members when you have something significant to report. Or visit our basement office on Tuesday evenings, when the paper is edited.

By all means, help us. Your reward will be a better community newspaper.

Rehab Complaints

To the Editor:

The Board of Directors of GHI has appointed an Ad Hoc Committee to consider complaints regarding the damage done to property by workmen doing the rehabilitation work.

If there are complaints, please notify the GHI Development Corporation in writing immediately. The sooner they know about it, the easier it will be to get the subcontractors to take the responsibility. If the Development Corporation can satisfy the complaint immediately, this committee will not need to take any action. However, if members are not satisfied, they may come to the meeting and present the complaint or call one of the committee members listed below. Meetings are held every Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the GHI Administration Building. In any case members are entitled to an acknowledgment within a week.

tain the services of the architectural firm of Environmental Design Group, Inc. of Reston, Virginia. In a proposal to GHI, EDG would do the inspection and write-up of individual homes (interiors) and buildings (exteriors) a requirement for receiving section 8 housing assistance. EDG's familiarity with the project, Kopstein noted, would be helpful. The group has already done work on Phase II plans ($35,000). The inspections would cost $52,000 for the interior write-ups, $28,000 for the exterior write-ups and $20,000 in staff time. The project is expected to take about 9 months. For an additional $79,500, EDG would provide "contract administration"—in effect, watching the way the money is spent.

Townhouse Resale Formula

Concerned about the two townhouses that remain unsold, the finance committee suggested that the board look into whether it has the authority to change the resale formula. Jim Smith explained that each time the house is sold, GHI's equity in the house increases. "This formula worked okay in the sixties when the increases were around 5%. Now, with inflation, GHI's equity grows very fast, making the cost of the houses unattractive to buyers." The original policy was set by the membership. Smith asked the board to seek the advice of counsel as to whether the board has the authority to revise the formula. A tie vote was broken when Volk voted in favor of referring the question to GHI's attorneys — Krooth and Altman. Also voting yes were: Wayne Williams, Margaret Hogenson, Della Donaldson and Joe Jenkins; voting no, Ed James, John Lewis, Steve Curtis and Carl Conrad.

Conflict-of-Interest

A deep division kept the board from resolving the issue raised by the manager's request to be exempt from signing the recently adopted conflict of interest statement. While the board had earlier accepted Kopstein's request that he not be asked to divulge the names and addresses of clients in his consulting business, Donaldson now had second thoughts. Apparently, Kopstein has been criticized for making telephone calls and having visitors during GHI working hours. "There is no way we can determine whether his outside activities interfere with (his management of GHI). I want a written disclosure statement," stated Donaldson.

Kopstein rejected an offer from James to move the discussion to executive session. "I have nothing to hide," he said. He insisted that the number of hours he works per week, plus meetings, adds up to far more than the 40 hours he is paid for despite "the few phone calls and occasional visits."

Angered by the direction of the discussion, he threatened to work only 40 hours per week, and take the compensatory time off he is entitled to for the evening meetings, if his daytime activities are restricted by the board. Jenkins assured him no such move is being considered.

In an effort to smooth the waters, Williams and Jenkins looked for a way to satisfy both sides. "How about a list of places and addresses of where you receive salary, so we know what you're dealing with besides us?" asked Jenkins.

Margaret Hogensen agreed, "We're dealing with a lot of money. I look at this as mutual protection."

Kopstein refused to make such a disclosure. "This is my personal business," he said, "it has nothing to do with GHI."

But Donaldson pursued. Kopstein's demand for privacy for his clients, she felt, was not relevant. "This (outside activity) drains your time and energy . . . We don't want to grant an exception without knowing what we're granting."

"The reason this came about," ventured Curtis, who had placed the item on the agenda, "progress here hasn't been going very well. (It is) partially our (fault) and partially management's." Referring to Kopstein's ability to find financing for the rehab project, Curtis speculated on whether in the end members might find rehab was "a well-financed bomb."

Williams placed the blame on lack of communications. "a problem that has always existed. Staff is very good in the other things they do."

The matter of Kopstein's disclosure statement was left hanging.

Communications

Communications sparked differences at other points during the evening, too. Member Betty Deitch was angered that the board's minutes were slow in being transmitted to the board for its approval and are not completed in chronological order. Secretary Joan Freeman informed Deitch of the serious shortage of secretarial help GHI is currently experiencing in the face of mounting written material. She invited volunteers to help.

Later, Hogensen asked about rehab communications to members. "We need a monthly letter," she said.

Kopstein explained "We don't have writers in the rehab program, it's not their area of expertise." The newsletter committee had met earlier in the week, reported Katherine Keene, member of both the audit committee and the Newsletter committee. GHI ought to concentrate on one or the other, Keene suggested, she preferred the Newsletter.

Williams and Hogensen, on the other hand, wanted a less polished, bi-weekly bulletin. "Something that can be put out quickly," said Hogensen. "Otherwise, the information is no longer correct, because things have changed."

Picking up on the manager's implied plea for help, Curtis offered a motion authorizing management to hire a person with writing skills for 18 months to two years. He called the position "Communications Information Specialist." Kopstein commented that the salary could range from $13,000 to $18,000 a year, but Curtis didn't flinch. "Let's not nickel and dime it," he said, jokingly.

"Do you see this as a full time job?" Donaldson asked Kopstein.

"Yes. We have so much correspondence and so many reports to government agencies," explained Kopstein. But Volk was reluctant to move so precipitously. The board agreed to delay a decision until its next meeting.

Proposed Moratorium On Rehab Discussed And Then Withdrawn

by June Webb

At the January 15 Greenbelt Homes Board of Directors meeting, director Carl Conrad moved to impose a moratorium on all aspects of Rehab: Phase 2 until all problems of Phase 1 are resolved to the satisfaction of the Board of Directors and the Audit Committee. He spoke of "misrepresentation" on the part of those conducting Phase 1, saying specifications were changed after they had been approved and after contracts had gone to bid. Conrad referred to Phase 1 as a "disaster area."

Conrad's proposal elicited much discussion at the meeting, and had an effect beyond the board room. City council's January 19 deferral of action on a letter requesting a portion of the state's revenue bonds allocation from the governor was attributed to Conrad's proposal.

Conrad's motion was supported by directors Steve Curtis and Ed James. Curtis favored a limitation on the amount of time spent by management and staff on Phase 2 planning. James said that the Phase 1 work is not being done correctly, and wanted problems on it to be solved before beginning Phase 2.

Member Bettie Denson stated that Phase 1 insulation has been poorly installed. She supported the moratorium proposal. Nat Shinderman also supported the proposal, saying mistakes of Phase 1 should be solved so that Phase 2 may benefit from them. However, he favored the continued planning of Phase 2. Joe Compton, referring to Phase 1 as "out of control," spoke in favor of Conrad's motion.

Opposed

Director Wayne Williams spoke of his opposition to important issues not on the agenda being "sprung on us" at board meetings. His motion to table Conrad's proposal failed.

Director Margaret Hogensen defined the cause of many Phase 1 problems as insufficient time being spent developing the specifications for the work. She said that delaying the planning work on Phase 2 would cause the same problem and be counterproductive. She emphasized that she was "totally opposed" to the motion.

Board president Don Volk felt that Phase 1 problems could be solved without delaying Phase 2, although he expressed a desire to see the work go more slowly, with more planning. He stated that everything had not been done wrong in Phase 1, stressing that it was not a disaster. He commented that another inspector has recently been hired to assist in assuring that rehab work is being done adequately.

While seeing merit in some of the arguments pro and con, director Joe Jenkins said he wanted to proceed with Phase 2. He favored more watchfulness over Phase 1.

Directors John Lewis and Della Donaldson expressed no opinion on the proposed moratorium.

Member Jim Smith opposed the motion. He said that CDA, HUD, and Prince Georges County are all involved in Phase 2 financing. He was concerned about the effect that expressions such as "sinking ship" coming from board members would have on the agencies' support of Phase 2. Tom White said that such a moratorium as Conrad's would be the "kiss of death" to the project.

Member Ben Hogensen cited a lack of cooperation and teamwork between management and architect, but saw no need for a moratorium on Phase 2. Frank Gervasi spoke of a meeting held the previous evening, January 14, between the board, architect, and the rehab consultant to iron out problems. He said that the problems can be solved only by working on them, and that the meeting was a step in the right direction. Kathrine Keene agreed with Gervasi and expressed the fear that Phase 1 rehab on the frames would be done, and the block and brick homes to be done under Phase 2 would be forgotten. She said that owners of those homes would be unhappy with board members who supported a moratorium on Phase 2.

Tim Mitter, assistant GHI manager, responded to criticism of Phase 1 and the proposed moratorium. He referred to mistakes that had been made, and were being rectified. He remarked that specifications on Phase 2 are being revamped and that halting any planning would interfere with that process. Mitter stated that CDA required specific justification for the amounts of money required, and that supplying the information takes time. He considered Conrad's proposal too general, covering all aspects of Phase 2.

Rehab coordinator D. A. Davis

Section 8 - Substantial Rehab: Funds for this program will not begin until rehab is finished and all eligible candidates will be notified in advance of the program's commencement, or any changes that may take place in the program's status.

described the lack of communication between planners and contractors as a major source of difficulty. He said that lack of accurate specifications and problems interpreting specifications had caused problems locating fire stops in the walls.

After a short intermission, it became evident that there were not enough votes to pass Conrad's motion. He withdrew it and director Curtis submitted a substitute motion. Management was directed to secure from the Phase 2 architect recommendations for modifications of Phase 2 specifications, and to provide detailed proposals on how to manage the design and/or redesign of Phases 1 and 2 where necessary. The motion carried.

Heart Assoc. Concert Tribute to Spellman

Maryland's top country and western music stars will perform together at a special "Country Heart-to-Heart" Concert Saturday, February 14 at 8 p.m. to benefit the Southern Maryland Chapter of the American Heart Association in Eleanor Roosevelt Senior High School.

Concert Chairman and Maryland Secretary of State Fred Wineland stated that the concert program and the proceeds of the event will be donated on behalf of Congresswoman Gladys Spellman who suffered a cardiac arrest in late October. The concert will be held at 8 p.m. in Eleanor Roosevelt Senior High School.

Half of the proceeds will be used for cardiopulmonary resuscitation training for the residents of Charles, St. Marys and Prince Georges counties. Other proceeds will be used for the "Heart-to-Heart" program which provides much-needed counseling for the spouses of heart attack victims.

The concert will feature one of America's top country and western groups - "Orion and Universe." Also performing will be the "Nash Rambler" and "Silver Raven" country/western groups.

Tickets can be reserved by calling 627-2023 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or 372-1275 after 6 p.m.

Price of Reduced Lunches Raised by Bd. of Education

An increase of 10 cents in the price of school lunches under the reduced-price lunch program, effective February 2 has been approved by the Prince Georges County Board of Education. The new price of the lunches will be 20 cents. Approximately 7,500 students are in the reduced-price lunch program.

The Board announced at its meeting on January 8 in Upper Marlboro that failure to increase the price would have resulted in a loss of $80,000 in food service revenue for the remainder of this fiscal year because of a decrease in federal support of the program. The recently enacted regulation also contains other provisions for reductions in food service subsidies and changes in eligibility requirements, which are now being analyzed for their impact on the school system.

Civic Association Elects New Board

Woodway Community Development Corporation held its board meeting on Wednesday, December 17. The following were elected as new board officers: President-Mark Davis; Vice President-June Rousseau; Treasurer-Harley Mann; and Secretary-Rick Barber. Other board members are Helen Geller, Joe Wilkinson, and Betty Timor.
